NO METAL TRIMMINGS.

Wood Good Enough for Lexington High School—G. W. Sampson for Economy—A. E. Scott Says the Building Is All Wrong, But Would Improve It.

Although there was a small attendance at the Lexington town meeting, Monday evening, the voters present, in an emphatic manner, killed the project to substitute metal trimmings for wooden ones on the new high school building. The voice of A. E. Scott was the only one raised in support of the $16,500 additional appropriation, and before a vote was taken it was clearly evident that the plan had no chance for success with the citizens present.

Edward C. Stone was unanimously elected moderator of the meeting, receiving 51 out of a total of 51 votes cast. The only business following the election of a moderator was: To see if the town desires to substitute stone and metal for wood (in whole or in part) in the exterior finish of the new high school building, and if so to make an appropriation therefor and to provide for borrowing money, or act in any manner relating thereto.

Robert P. Clapp, chairman of the building committee, explained the reason for the special town meeting. He said he wished to "disabuse the minds of the voters of the idea that the committee is before the town asking for an additional sum of money for the building. The committee makes no such report. The meeting is at the request of a number of citizens. The remark was commonly made that the town was making a mistake in not having stone and metal trimmings." He then told how the contract with the contractors who had made so that should the town vote for metal instead of wood before Feb. 1, 1902, the desired change could be made at a minimum expense. The cost, he said, would not be over $16,500, and would probably be somewhat less. Mr. Clapp said he was personally opposed to the plan, but thought it was fair to give the voters a chance to decide what was for the best. The committee, while not agreed on this point, was agreed that either the whole plan should be adopted or not at all. In reply to a question by Rev. C. A. Staples, Mr. Clapp said the proposed plan would bring the cost of the building up to about $135,000.

There was silence for a time and then B. F. Brown moved that the whole matter be indefinitely postponed, and Mr. Clapp asked for remarks from the men who were so anxious for the adoption of the proposed plan.

George W. Sampson and A. E. Scott arose at the same time, but the former being recognized first, Mr. Sampson said the question of indefinite postponement was one with which he was personally in sympathy. He disliked to vote against an appropriation unless the best reasons appeared for so doing.

Twenty-five cents, he said, he asked in addition to the first cost for ornamental filigree. He preferred to have the $16,000 go in salaries to the teachers, and said when another town found out that Lexington had an especially good teacher it secured the teacher's services by offering more money. He said the German schoolhouses were not handsome structures, but the quality of the schools was unquestioned. The $16,000 would keep the building repaired for a long time. The idea of spending so much money for ornamentation reminded him of the man who treated his friends to champagne suppers while the knees to his pants had holes in them. The speaker threw a compliment at the building committee for the good work it had accomplished, and then spoke of the need of Lexington having an especially good teacher. The water debt must be paid before many years. A sewerage system must come, a primary school building is a thing of the near future. He also thought the metropolitan water system must be used before many years else the digging of wells must continue, and he prophesied that the former plan would finally be adopted. Interest on all of these things would make a handsome sum, and so he would draw the line on costly ornamentations.

Augustus E. Scott, who at a former meeting opposed any new high school building, said that so long as one was to be built the best one was none too good, and he moved that $16,500 be appropriated for the proposed plan. He hit out at Mr. Sampson by referring to the man who was chiefly responsible in getting the vote to build the new structure and who is now for economy. Mr. Scott was opposed to wood trimmings, and said the building was a bad one throughout, the rooms badly placed and that it was all wrong, but as the town had voted to build it ought to make the building as good as it could under the circumstances. He several times adjudged it "a great mistake, and when it is completed we will never be satisfied with it."

The moderator ruled Mr. Scott's motion out of order, because the motion to indefinitely postpone took the precedence, and although Mr. Scott asserted his motion was in order the motion to postpone was put before the house and declared carried. Upon a doubt being raised, a hand count was made, resulting in 53 in favor of postponing indefinitely and but 23 against it.

BELMONT.

The concert and dance given by the Tufts College Glee and Mandolin clubs in the town hall Tuesday evening, was a great success and was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. The program was a good one and the boys gave their pieces with a dash and spirit which is characteristic of every Tufts glee club. The pieces were well chosen, the voices blended well together, giving evidence of much careful training, and the club reflects great credit on its instructor. The reader of the club, Forest S. Lunt, a young man with a good deal of dramatic ability, gave several readings to good effect. His rendering of "Lascia" was exceptionally fine, and in this piece Mr. Lunt appears at his best. Another section of the program was a humorous character and provoked much mirth throughout the audience. After the glee club concert the hall was cleared and Poole's orchestra, of Boston, furnished music for dancing, which was enjoyed by many until midnight.

The following article, which appeared in the editorial column of a prominent Boston daily of recent date gives some idea of Mr. Atkins's holdings in Cuba: "What Mr. Edward F. Atkins doesn't know about the sugar business in Cuba is scarcely worth mentioning. He owns sugar plantations to the extent of 14,000 acres, three of which 400 are under cultivation. He employs 2000 persons, owns his own railroad, mills, steamship lines and storehouses, and so has the cost of sugar growing reduced to a minimum. His testimony as to the condition of that industry in Cuba ought to be enlightening, if anybody's can be."

Joseph Ryan, of Common street, and James Looney, of Waverley street, have become members of the Waltham club, of Waltham.

The annual meeting of All Saints' church was held Monday evening, Jan. 20, and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: Wardens, Leonard S. King, Otto A. Christensen; treasurer, J. Herbert Stedman; clerk, Leonard S. King; vestry, Mrs. John M. Brown, Mrs. L. S. King, Mrs. W. L. Cheney, Mrs. F. Lincoln, Mrs. G. H. Stedman, Mrs. B. F. Floyd, Miss Helen M. Adams, John Kilburn, H. A. Scramton, E. F. Halliwell. Saturday, Jan. 25, being St. Paul's day, there will be a communion service at 8 o'clock A. M.

The directors of the Belmont Savings bank have declared a dividend of 3 1/2 per cent per annum, payable after Jan. 15.

Miss Laura MacCabe has been visiting in Dedham this week.

A very successful social and supper was given by the Ladies Aid of the Plymouth Congregational society, in their rooms on School street, Wednesday evening. A nice supper of home cooking was served at 6.30 and at 8 o'clock a short musical program was announced, at the close of which social intercourse was the order of things until adjournment at an early hour.

It is reported that Chief Ryan is doing well at the Waltham hospital. His family and friends are given some hope that he may be able to return to his home next week.

It is hoped that a large number will attend the lecture to be given by Mrs. G. A. Custer in the town hall, next Friday evening, Jan. 31. The subject will be "Garrison Life and Work." Mrs. Custer has kindly offered her services and the proceeds will be devoted to the treasury of the Belmont Hospital Aid society.

Messrs. Fred Melsel, Jos. O. Wellington, George Fletcher, Charles O. Adams, W. B. Beach, of the Belmont club, were defeated two out of three at Caruth's alleys, Boston, Tuesday evening. As usual—no alleys like home.

Rev. F. R. Lewis, of Middleboro, will preach at the Unitarian church, tomorrow.

Hal' Baldwin is about again, recovering from an operation.

A. Adams was able to be out Thursday, after a two weeks' confinement.

It is expected that the new library will be ready about May 1.

Town reports went to press this week. They will be ready for distribution about March 1.

Rev. F. R. Lewis, of Middleboro, will preach at the Unitarian church, tomorrow. Rev. S. K. Beach, of Bangor, Me., will preach Feb. 2; Rev. Dr. Edward E. Hale, Feb. 9; Henry Foote, of the Harvard Divinity school, Feb. 16.

WAVERLEY.

A few of the ladies of the Waverley Congregational society are arranging for a concert to be given in the church, Monday evening, Feb. 3, by the Nevins Concert quartet. Miss Charlotte Lynn, the soprano, is soloist at the Park Street church, Boston. Jos. L. Rubel is tenor in the choir of one of Waltham's churches. Miss M. Josephine Comstock, contralto, Miss Lina A. Whitcomb, pianist, A. N. Brander, baritone, are all soloists of excellent report.

The annual business meeting of the First Congregational society of Waverley was held in the church vestry, Wednesday evening. Those who acted as moderators were: The following were received into the church membership: Messrs. J. E. Libby, Fred E. Poor, L. T. McKenney. The treasurer's report was read by Thomas W. Davis, treasurer. The following officers were elected for 1902: Clerk, W. R. Lamkin; treasurer, George P. Armstrong; auditor, W. F. Little; prudential committee, Messrs. Geo. C. Flett, James Baldwin, James W. McCabe, Harrie E. Carpenter and Thos. W. Davis.

The regular meeting of the Young People's Religious union will be held in the Unitarian church vestry at 6.30 tomorrow evening. All are invited. Subject, "Rev. John W. Chadwick," will be introduced by Miss Maud H. Roscoe. The service will be led by Frank H. Stearns.

The Christian Endeavor meeting, Sunday evening, was led by Miss Hubert. Subject, "Choosing a Hard Thing." A letter from Miss Holton, a teacher in a school in Macon, Ga., was read. Miss Holton is a member of the Waverley society.

Miss Ethel Drayton is acting as organist at the Unitarian church, for Mrs. Charles Houlahan, during her illness.

February 13 is the date set for the Waverley Tennis Club minstreals. All that good amateur talent and hard work can do will aid toward making the affair a rousing success.

A meeting was held at the home of Jay R. Benton, this week, to form a Boys' Social club. Shall it be religious, athletic or political?

The Ladies' Aid society will hold their January social in Waverley hall, next Wednesday evening. Supper at 7. The entertainment at 8 o'clock will be a good one. See the drill.

The first grand social of the Protector Veteran Firemen's association, to be given in Waverley hall, next Thursday evening, Jan. 30, promises to be a great success. The organization was formed in the early fall and the membership

FIFTY YEARS OF LAW.

Son Succeeds Father In The Municipal Court Of Boston.

Chief Justice William E. Parmenter of Arlington Resigns at Age of 84 Years—The Oldest Presiding Magistrate in United States—James P. Parmenter Appointed Associate Justice By Governor W. Murray Crane.

The municipal court of Boston lost this week its chief justice, William E. Parmenter of Arlington, who resigned, but James P. Parmenter of Arlington, son of the chief justice, was quickly appointed by Governor Crane as an associate justice. The resignation was made Wednesday, and the appointment was announced almost as soon as the other event became known. The elder Parmenter retires with an annual income of $2250, and the salary of the new associate is to be $4000.

Chief Justice Parmenter is the oldest justice of any court in this state, if not indeed in the entire Union. He has been in Clad, and on Dec. 12 of that year he took his seat as a regular member in the capacity of associate justice. Upon the death of Chief Justice John Wilder May, Gen. Butler, then Governor on Jan. 22, 1883, appointed Justice Parmenter as his successor.

Judge Parmenter usually sat in civil cases because he preferred them, and his associates were glad to relieve him in every possible way, on account of his age. If occasion required, however, he did not hesitate to sit in the most difficult of criminal or civil cases. No question was so complicated but what he was able to analyze it thoroughly and distinguish accurately between contending arguments. He has been universally recognized as a judge whose opinions and decisions were active service in the court up to within a very short time, and, though he has not sat in the criminal courts for several years, he has been able to attend to civil cases which came to his attention. During the past few months he has not been able, owing to his advanced years, to attend to his duties as heretofore, and, therefore, decided to send to the Governor his resignation.

He was the oldest son of the Hon. William Parmenter, formerly of Cambridge, and a member of Congress from 1837 to 1845. The judge was born in Boston in 1817. His father moved to Cambridge in 1824, and the judge received his early education in the Cambridge public schools. Upon leaving school he entered Harvard College, graduating from there in 1836. He was the oldest son of the Hon. William Parmenter, formerly of Cambridge, and a member of Congress from 1837 to 1845. The judge was born in Boston in 1817. His father moved to Cambridge in 1824, and the judge received his early education in the Cambridge public schools. Upon leaving school he entered Harvard College, graduating from there in 1836.

He studied law for a time in a private office, he went to the Harvard Law school and was admitted to the bar in 1842.

He moved to Arlington, then West Cambridge in 1852, where he has since resided. The following year the judge was married to Miss Helen James of North Scituate, and has lived in Arlington ever since. He has two sons, one of them, William E., Jr., a graduate of Harvard, class of 1877, now a farmer in Florida; and the other, James P. Parmenter. In 1856 the judge was chosen a member of the Arlington school impartial, and they were generally sustained by the higher courts.

He had tried many thousand cases during his more than a quarter of century of service, and by reason of his position has been obliged to become familiar with the every day life, yet he has retained his gentle and genial disposition, his kindly nature and all the admirable traits of character which endeared him to all with whom he came in contact. But he has never allowed his disposition to make him too lenient to offenders. He had a keen, discriminating sense and meted out justice according to the deserts of the prisoner and the requirements of the law.

On the 11th of March, 1900, Judge Parmenter attained the age of 84 years. He had at that time been a lawyer for 58 years, a justice in the municipal court of Boston for 28 years and for 17 years chief justice. His memory of events is still clear. While a member of the Elliot case, in 1824, he has a distinct recollection of the visit of Lafayette to Boston and his reception on the Common; of the procession at the time of the laying of the cornerstone of Bunker Hill monument; of being present, while a student at Harvard College, of the bestowal of the degree of LL. D. upon President Andrew Jackson in 1833; of the destruction by a mob of the Ursuline convent at Charlestown in 1834, and many other important public events.

The chief justice has heard Mr. Choate, Frank Dexter, Webster and Jeremiah Mason. Mr. Webster's great opposition to him in the case of the Elliot case, in 1824, he has not identified himself closely with politics. In church life he had always been a Unitarian.

James P. Parmenter, the newly appointed justice of the municipal court, was born in Arlington Nov. 29, 1859. He attended the grammar and high schools of his native town and entered Harvard College in 1877, graduating in the class of 1881. He was admitted to the Suffolk bar in December, 1883, and has since continued in the practice of his profession. For several years he was on the Arlington school committee and was for time president of the board. He is now a trustee of the Arlington Robbins Library. He is unmarried and resides with his aged father at the family residence in Arlington.

ALMSHOUSE FIRE LOSS.

A request for a more detailed account of the loss at the Arlington almshouse property having been made, it is given herewith through the kindness of George Y. Wellington & Son. The insurance carried was $6000 on the barn and sheds adjoining and the tramp house. The contents, but they had no insurance on the detached shed containing the watering carts. The loss as made up by the adjusters is as follows: $358 damage to barn, on hay $100 (total loss on the property insured $458, which has been paid).

Some questions have been asked why the new shed and the sprinklers were insured as well as the other property, and upon inquiry of a member of the board of selectmen, it was stated that the matter of insurance had been delayed until the other insurance had expired, which was in the near future. It chanced to be one of the instances where fire spoiled the calculations. The property was so favorably situated that damage in this way would, except for an incendiary blaze, be usually a small one.

Lloyd Main, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Main, of 23 Water street, was injured yesterday noon by having his left arm run over by a heavy coal wagon. The lad was on his way home from school, and was passing the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Mystic street when he spied an electric car starting for Winchester. He jumped on the rear in order to get a short ride, as boys are too apt to do, and upon jumping off fell directly under the wheels of the coal wagon. He was taken into Grossmith's store and from there to his home. Dr. Donnet was called, and after an investigation said there were no bones broken.

A PAN AND A LEOPARD.

An Astonished Woman and a Still More Astonished Animal.

Kula is a district in the Himalayas consisting of a chain of the most lovely valleys conceivable, with this drawback, among others, that each hill path that runs by the inhabitants' huts more often than not contains a lurking leopard. One day a worthy Kula housewife came out from her cooking and, standing on the edge of rock, emptied a pan of boiling water into the rank herbage growing below. It fell splash on the back of a sleeping leopard, who jumped perpendicularly into the air as high as the roof of the hut.

What might have happened next who can say? But the astonished woman dropped the pan with a clang on the rock, and the leopard took one leap down hill. The pan followed, and the leopard's downward leaps became longer and swifter as the pan bounded after it from rock to rock. When last seen, that leopard had just achieved a leap of about 350 feet to the very bottom of the ravine, thousands of feet below, and the pan whirled about 500 feet over it on the opposite side. The leopard would have eaten the old woman with pleasure, but a pan, the contents of which first scalded half the hide off him and then bounded, clanging in his wake, from the top of the Himalayas to the plains below was something he could not face.

Dividing a Long Sermon.

Dr. Samuel Buell of the last half of the eighteenth century, who used to preach two or three hours, like Isaac Barrows, was ingenious in detaining his congregation. On one occasion, after preaching nearly two hours—as long as he could feel secure in the presence of all his hearers—he remarked that he was done preaching to sinners and that they were at liberty to go. The rest of his discourse would be addressed to good people.

A gentleman who once went to hear him stated that when the bourgeoisie was nearly ready to be turned a second time from the commencement of his sermon he said, much to the relief of the person who related it, "Once more." After going on some eight or ten minutes longer he said, "To conclude," and after another about equal interval he said, "Lastly."

The gentleman added that he expected every moment to hear him say "Everlastingly."

Grandma's Cure For Dandruff.

"We often scoff at the ancient grandmother remedies," said a physician the other day in conversation with a patient, "but our forefathers used to get a power of comfort from them nevertheless, and cheaply too. Science has progressed wonderfully, of course, and we are much better off on the whole now than were our sires, but we forget a great many of the little things. Now I notice that you are troubled with dandruff, and I'll wager that you have spent many dollars on different alleged cures, and you are worse off now than when you commenced. Let me give you a 'grandmother' prescription that never fails. Go to a drug store and buy 5 cents' worth of salts of tartar. Dissolve half of it in warm water and wash the head thoroughly. Repeat this at intervals of three months for a year, and you won't be annoyed with dandruff any more."

THE CUTTS CASE AGAIN.

The edge was somewhat taken off Harvard's recent notable football victory over Yale by the discovery that O. F. Cutts, the star football tackle who contributed largely to his team's success, was in reality ineligible to play under the Harvard rules. For some weeks before the big game the air was full of rumors that Cutts had been guilty of professionalism in receiving money for instruction in athletics, and it was not until two hours before the game that the doubts were seemingly cleared away. But although making no formal protest, Yale all along thought that the tackle was ineligible, and said so even after the game was over. The final discovery just made was that Mr. Cutts while at the school at Haverford had received money for private lessons in boxing which he had forgotten when his eligibility was called into question. The Harvard athletic committee has publicly apologized for the incident and Mr. Cutts has taken all responsibility upon himself, so that the affair may be considered closed.

BOSTON GLOBE'S HOME FEATURES.

The conspicuous merit of the Boston Globe is the fact that it does not limit itself to full recital of news events, but also supplies (every day in the year) magazine attractions that make it a welcome guest in every home.

The daily paper as exemplified by the Daily Globe has become a valuable medium of instruction and healthful amusement. For instance, it prints every day a Housekeepers' Department conducted by the clever housekeepers of New England, full of cooking recipes, fancy work, hints on the care of plants and flowers, and pet animals, crocheting, knitting and tatting. Through this department you can get an answer either through the paper or by mail, to any proper question of legitimate home interest.

The Globe prints every day a "Poem You Ought to Know" from the best works, illustrated with the portrait and autograph of the author, with a good account of the writer and his work. This is a valuable school as well as home feature.

Another valuable school and home feature is the "Daily Lesson in History," with autograph and portrait, an impartial account of some notable figure in military, naval, civil, political, commercial, industrial, philanthropic or artistic annals.

Every week day (holidays and Sundays excepted) the Globe has an installment of a serial story of the real old-fashioned kind, and of the best school of present day authors, while every day in the year it prints a complete short story of sane and sensible fiction.

The Daily Globe has an illustrated puzzle every day, and lately it has started a "Puzzle Problem" column, which has aroused all the clever guessers, arithmeticians, mathematicians and figures of New England. It is open to all competitors; no fee to join.

The development of the Sunday Globe is no less striking. It has, besides all the news, the unrivaled color pages in a 12-page section of magazine mirth, literature and fiction. It devotes a whole page to the young folks who like good poetry, acrostics, puzzles, stories, color cutouts and picture stories.

It has a comprehensive Housekeepers' Department, reinforcing that striking feature of the Daily. In it are printed columns of the best cooking and illustrated needlework, with this special attraction not found in the Daily, namely, the discussion by practical housekeepers of the expenses of keeping house, doing housework, bringing up of children and the care of babies.

The Sunday Globe also has a whole page of complete short stories by the best writers in the United States and British empire. Every issue of the Boston Globe, daily and Sunday, contains numerous reproductions of the best fashion plates for women that can be had in Paris, New York and London, and up to date. But the Sunday Globe has also two striking fashion articles by expert writers and illustrators.

The "Beautiful and the Charming Woman" is a new series of toilet talks just started in the Sunday Globe. It has proved a great boudoir hit, because it is replete with good recipes and sensible advice about the complexion and the feminine form.

The Sunday Globe has, moreover, recently added the new educational auxiliary, a beautiful reproduction each Sunday of some famous work of art, with an account of the picture and the artist. Order your newsdealer to deliver the Boston Globe and Sunday Globe regularly at your home.

WASHINGTON TOURS, $25.
Descriptive itineraries of the series of tours, Boston to Washington, under the personally conducted tourist system of the Pennsylvania railroad, may be obtained of D. N. Bell, tourist agent, 205 Washington street, Boston.

The attention of those who intend giving their children a musical education is called to the advertisement of Miss E. L. Baker in another column. Miss Baker teaches the well known Fletcher method, and new classes will start the week commencing Jan. 27.

H. B. Johnson, of Arlington, continues to repair all kinds of boilers and heaters in the best possible manner. Before going to Boston or elsewhere to buy a heater for your new house or your old one get an estimate from Mr. Johnson and be convinced that you can save money. Is not that a fair request? LESSON IV, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JAN. 26.

Text of the Lesson, Acts III, 1-16. Memory Verses, 6-8—Golden Text, Ex. xv, 2—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

1-3. It was the hour of the evening sacrifice, the hour when Jesus died on Golgotha (Matt. xxvii, 46, 50), that found Peter and John going into the temple on this occasion. While the unbelieving Jews continued their forms the believers in Jesus Christ met for prayer, knowing that the true and only sacrifice for sin was in heaven on their behalf and that they, His witnesses, could do nothing without Him.

4, 5. As Peter and John said, "Look on us," he looked, expecting to receive something in the way of money, for he knew not of the durable riches and righteousness of Prov. viii, 18. "He gave heed, expecting to receive," and that is more than many believers do when they pray, for they ask, and wonder if they are heard, and are surprised if they receive, and talk about its being so wonderful and so strange. How much better it would be when we pray to expect, according to Ps. v, 3; xlii, 5; John xiv, 13, 14. This lame man was expecting from people, but Peter and John had learned to expect from God. If believers would have hold of or be laid hold of by these words: "Cease ye from man," "It is God who worketh" (Isa. ii, 22; Phil. ii, 13), great things might be seen.

6. "In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk." Silver and gold could not do this nor all the power of man, but those who have neither gold nor silver can be friends of and partners with Him who doeth all such things. There is something better than money which can be had without money (Isa. lv, 1; Rev. xii, 17). Many profess to have the gift of God, but some really possess Him. It would be well to consider, "Have I Christ, or do I only seem to have or think that I have?" (Luke viii, 18, margin; 1 John v, 12). Peter could say: "I have," "I give."

7, 8. "Walking and leaping and praising God." This by a man over forty years of age who had never walked! Well might the people call it a notable miracle (chapter iv, 16, 22). It was accomplished in a moment. As soon as Peter took him by the right hand immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength. It was written by the prophet that the lame man should leap as a hart (Isa. xxxv, 6). But how few would ever expect that such words would have such a literal fulfillment? And that is one of our great difficulties and hindrances. We seem so slow to believe that God means just what He says.

9, 10. The people saw Him and knew Him and were filled with wonder and amazement. So on the day of Pentecost they were all amazed and marvelled (chapter ii, 7, 12). The change in this man was so manifest and unmistakable that it could not be denied (iv, 16), yet the authorities would, if they could, stop all such doings. A lady whom I know, whose eyes were miraculously healed after all the doctors had failed to help, put the story in tract form, and a doctor who read it told her she was doing wrong, as others might think they could have a similar experience. What are we on earth for if not that the works of God may be seen in us. (John ix, 3.)

11. "The lame man which was healed held Peter and John." The healed man naturally clung to his deliverers, and the crowd ran to see the healed and the healers. There is so little power of God in the church today that the crowd has to be drawn by entertainments, suppers, concerts, etc.; but let some of the power that was seen on this occasion be again manifested, and the things which now disgrace the church might speedily vanish. This man's help came through Peter and John, and he clung to his visible deliverers. When we learn to say sincerely, "My help cometh from the Lord, who made heaven and earth," we will no longer look to the hills for help (Ps. cxxi, 1, 2, margin, and Jer. lxxiii, 23).

12. "Why look ye so earnestly on us?" Not knowing the invisible God, people gaze with wonder upon the visible instruments by whom God is graciously pleased to work, but if those whom God uses would continue to be used by Him they must be careful to give God the glory, for no flesh shall glory in His presence (1 Cor. i, 29-31). As soon as the instrument is willing to be magnified the power ceases. Concerning Pharaoh's dream, Joseph said that it was not in him to interpret it, but that God would do it, and Daniel said that there was no wisdom in him more than in others, but that the God in heaven, who revealeth secrets, would make known the dream (Gen. xli, 16; Dan. ii, 28-30).

13-16. "His name, through faith in His name, hath made this man strong." As on the day of Pentecost, he told them that Jesus, whom they had crucified, had by God been raised from the dead and received up into heaven, so now he again tells them that the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob had glorified His Son Jesus, having raised Him from the dead, and that the perfect soundness of this man who had been lame was due wholly to the risen Christ, whose witnesses they were. We do not know that the man had any faith in Christ, but Peter and John had, and as the faith of the woman of Tyre and Sidon brought health to her daughter and the faith of the centurion brought health to his servant (Matt. viii, 10, 13; xv, 28), so their faith brought health to this man. Who can tell the possibilities of faith in God, and what do we know of the faith of the Son of God? (Mark xii, 22-24; Gal. ii, 20.) As Mephibosheth was lame through no fault of his own, yet was made to live with the king and eat continually at the king's table (II Sam. ix, 4; ix, 13), so we who are all lame through Adam's sin, without strength, ungodly, may be healed by Him who, having died for us, is now alive forevermore (Rom. v, 1-16; iii, 24). Peter, in the power of the Spirit, preaches unto them Jesus and the resurrection, as taught by the prophets, and, telling them that Jesus Christ shall come again to restore all things of which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets, he urges them to repent, that their sins may be blotted out and that the times of refreshing may come with the coming again of the Lord Jesus (verses 17-21 and see R. V.). To the Jew first (verse 26) and to every creature (Mark xvi, 15) we are to give the gospel, that out of all nations the people for His name may be gathered (Acts xv, 14), and thus His Eve builded, that He may take her to Himself and come again in His glory.

LATEST FASHIONS.

FAVORITE BOAS, CLOTH COATS AND FURS OF THE DAY.

Lace Adds Its Elegant and Becoming Touch to Fur—Close Fitting Jackets Seem to Be Coming In Again. Black Net Gowns For Evening.

A feature in the fashions of the moment is the amalgamation of fur and lace. Many of the coats that are not peleries are brought down below the waist with any open jacket that may be worn, the lace coming from under these ends, while it turns over as a sort of revers at the neck and gives a touch of exceeding smartness. Ermine is thus blended with lace, for the demand for ermine increases. Like light feather boas, its whiteness is becoming to the skin, certainly of youth, and those who have lost "la premiere jeunesse" are content to soften the effect with a little black chiffon. It is astonishing, as years go on, how friendly is that touch of black chiffon! Many young women have a rounded collar and lapel like that of a man's coat, made of ermine, which they slip on as they require it, and this is invariably mingled with a long scarf of lace or a dainty jabot, and the addition gives just the touch of smartness which is desired in the present style of dress. Lace and fur accord well with the large picturesque hats which are almost invariably trimmed now with this same mixture of fur softened by lace.

Full length and three-quarter coats remain the striking wraps of the present. The first cut shows a handsome three-quarter length coat in black glaze and jet and a full length cloth coat with black bear collar and tails. Fur garments seem to be growing more and more lovely and elaborate. In the second cut the Russian bolero of minerv, with belt and cuffs of embroidered velvet, shows the warm and cozy effect of one style, while the three-quarter coat of finest caracul, with high roll collar and a border of the same, is a strikingly luxurious confection.

Russian blouses made in cloth or velvet, the length bulging over the waistband and trimmed with large collars either of sable or chinchilla, with open bell sleeves, are some of the most fashionable outdoor garments. We are also returning to the close fitting jacket.

A good deal of inch wide black velvet ribbon is introduced on evening dresses, lines and cross lines intermingling with chenille stitchery. Black gowns of some thin material covered with embroidery, in which many elements mingle, cut square and having elbow sleeves, are extremely fashionable. In fact, no woman in society can afford to be without one at least.

Removing Ink Stains With Milk.

Although most people know that milk is the proper thing to remove an ink stain, many are not aware that the following is said to be the best way to go to work: The milk, having been boiled, should be allowed to cool until it is lukewarm, and the stained material should be dipped as soon as possible in this warm milk and rubbed lightly with the finger. The cleaning medium should be renewed as often as it becomes black. The ink stain will then be seen to fade away gradually, and the material will be rinsed and dried quickly and ironed.

INSTRUCTIONS.

Before giving an alarm be sure a fire exists.

Give the alarm at the nearest box.

Pull the hook way down, only once, and let go.

Never give an alarm for a fire seen at a distance.

Wait at the box, if possible, and direct the firemen to the fire.

Never give a second alarm for the same fire; all second alarms are given by the engineers or other persons in authority.

Never give an alarm for a brush fire unless buildings are in danger; but inform the engineers and they will take action to extinguish it.

Citizens are requested to inform themselves as to the location of keys. Signs over the boxes will give the necessary information.

CAUTION TO PERSONS HAVING KEYS.

Never open boxes except to give an alarm.

You cannot remove your key until an engine releases it, and it will then be returned to you.

Never allow the key out of your possession except to some responsible party, for the purpose of giving an alarm, and then get the key back.

If you remove from your place of residence or business, return the key to the chief engineer.

A CASE OF RHEUMATISM

By Carrie M. Taylor.

Copyright, 1901, by A. S. Richardson.

Things had happened in the town of Rossville—dogfights, runaways, Fourth of July, elections and clothesline robberies—but nothing had ever happened to equal the failure of Thomas Mason, merchant. He went to the wall after doing business for twenty years, owing his New York creditors $2,000.

His failure was known at 8 o'clock one morning, and by 9 it was generally understood that his wife's extravagance had precipitated the crisis. An hour later everybody could remember just how many new hats, dresses and cloaks she had had during the last year, to say nothing of hosiery, gloves and shoes. At 11 o'clock Mr. Mason hung himself in his woodshed, and at high noon the body was discovered and public gossip had it that the widow had been left without a dollar and would have to take in washing. Had a vote been taken the ballot would have stood: Sorry for her, 000; glad on't, 3,000.

Mrs. Mason had always been high headed and exclusive, and so her "come down" was exulted over—not for long, however. The funeral had scarcely been held when it became known that the husband had left her $20,000 life insurance. Public opinion changed at once. She received so many calls of sympathy that the front gate dropped from its hinges, and had any one dared to hint that she was high headed or extravagant there would have been a row.

After a year of mourning half a dozen different men were ready to give the widow a new name and to handle her cash. She had taken no vow against a second marriage, and she looked more lovable than ever. The list of her admirers included a widower, a bachelor, a divorced lawyer and three young men, and their feet kept her front steps warm. It looked as if she would have to select one of the six to protect her from the other five, but she was in no hurry.

One by one they dropped out until only the lawyer and the bachelor were left. People said it was about an even thing between them, and the lawyer, whose name was Braxton, must have argued the same way. He wouldn't have been a lawyer if he had been satisfied with an even thing.

When two men love the same woman, she is kept plentifully supplied with bouquets, books, music and all else that a lover may send, and never a day passes that at least one does not long to die for her. Neither man can score an advantage, and the case is finally decided on its merits. The bachelor, Mr. Dayton, argued it out that this one would be, but the lawyer didn't. He began to study the widow's character with a view to making a grand coup. She was not ambitious; she was not vain; she couldn't be taken in by flattery; she had just one weak point, as the lawyer lover decided—she was romantic and inclined to hero worship and he would build up his case on that.

It isn't an easy thing to be a hero to order. When Mr. Braxton had decided to take that line, the trouble was to find an occasion. There were no mad dogs running about the streets of Rossville, no raging conflagrations, nobody tumbling into the river to be pulled out, no anything. He walked around for a week or two looking for a hero opening, but as none came he sat down to do some hard judicial thinking. History does not state whether he got through at midnight or was still working when the sun of next morning shone on his face, but he had got his plan just the same.

That forenoon at 10 o'clock he passed the Mason house on his way to the office. The widow, who was working among her pinks and hollyhocks, gave him cordial salutation. He stopped to assure her of his undying affection and

A PAN AND A LEOPARD.

An Astonished Woman and a Still More Astonished Animal.

Kula is a district in the Himalayas consisting of a chain of the most lovely valleys conceivable, with this drawback, among others, that each hill path that runs by the inhabitants' huts more often than not contains a lurking leopard. One day a worthy Kula housewife came out from her cooking and, standing on the edge of rock, emptied a pan of boiling water into the rank herbage growing below. It fell splash on the back of a sleeping leopard, who jumped perpendicularly into the air as high as the roof of the hut.

What might have happened next who can say? But the astonished woman dropped the pan with a clang on the rock, and the leopard took one leap down hill. The pan followed, and the leopard's downward leaps became longer and swifter as the pan bounded after it from rock to rock. When last seen, that leopard had just achieved a leap of about 350 feet to the very bottom of the ravine, thousands of feet below, and the pan whirled about 500 feet over it on the opposite side.

The leopard would have eaten the old woman with pleasure, but a pan, the contents of which first scalded half the hide off him and then bounded, clanging in his wake, from the top of the Himalayas to the plains below was something he could not face.

Dividing a Long Sermon.

Dr. Samuel Buell of the last half of the eighteenth century, who used to preach two or three hours, like Isaac Barrows, was ingenious in detaining his congregation. On one occasion, after preaching nearly two hours—as long as he could feel secure in the presence of all his hearers—he remarked that he was done preaching to sinners and that they were at liberty to go. The rest of his discourse would be addressed to good people.

A gentleman who once went to hear him stated that when the hourglass was nearly ready to be turned a second time from the commencement of his sermon he said, much to the relief of the person who related it, "Once more." After going on some eight or ten minutes longer he said, "To conclude," and after another about equal interval he said, "Lastly."

The gentleman added that he expected every moment to hear him say "Everlastingly."

Grandma's Cure For Dandruff.

"We often scoff at the ancient grandmother remedies," said a physician the other day in conversation with a patient, "but our forefathers used to get a power of comfort from them nevertheless, and cheaply too. Science has progressed wonderfully, of course, and we are much better off on the whole now than were our sires, but we forget a great many of the little things. Now I notice that you are troubled with dandruff, and I'll wager that you have spent many dollars on different alleged cures, and you are worse off now than when you commenced. Let me give you a 'grandmother' prescription that never fails. Go to a drug store and buy 5 cents' worth of salts of tartar. Dissolve half of it in warm water and wash the head thoroughly. Repeat this at intervals of three months for a year, and you won't be annoyed with dandruff any more."

THE CUTTS CASE AGAIN.

The edge was somewhat taken off Harvard's recent notable football victory over Yale by the discovery that O. F. Cutts, the star football tackle who contributed largely to his team's success, was in reality ineligible to play under the Harvard rules. For some weeks before the big game the air was full of rumors that Cutts had been guilty of professionalism in receiving money for instruction in athletics, and it was not until two hours before the game that the doubts were seemingly cleared away. But although making no formal protest, Yale all along thought that the tackle was ineligible, and said so even after the game was over. The final discovery just made was that Mr. Cutts, while at the school at Haverford had received money for private lessons in boxing which he had forgotten when his eligibility was called into question. The Harvard athletic committee has publicly apologized for the incident and Mr. Cutts has taken all responsibility upon himself so that the affair may be considered closed.

BOSTON GLOBE'S HOME FEATURES.

The conspicuous merit of the Boston Globe is the fact that it does not limit itself to full recital of news events, but also supplies every day in the shape of magazine attractions, that make it a welcome guest in every home.

The daily paper as exemplified by the Daily Globe has become a valuable medium of instruction and healthful amusement. For instance, it prints every day a Housekeepers' Department conducted by the clever housekeepers of New England, full of cooking recipes, fancy work, hints on the care of plants and flowers and pet animals, crocheting, knitting and tatting. Through this department you can get an answer either through the paper or by mail, to any proper question of legitimate home interest.

The Globe prints every day a "Poem You Ought to Know" from the best works, illustrated with the portrait and autograph of the author, with a good account of the writer and his work. This is a valuable school as well as home feature.

Another valuable school and home feature is the "Daily Lesson in History," with autograph and portrait, an important account of some notable figure in military, naval, civil, political, commercial, industrial, philanthropic or artistic annals.

Every week day (holidays and Sundays excepted) the Globe has an instalment of a serial story of the real old-fashioned kind and of the best school of present day authors, while every day in the year it prints a complete short story of sane and sensible fiction.

The Daily Globe has an illustrated puzzle every day, and lately it has started a "Puzzle Problem" column, which has aroused all the clever guessers, arithmeticians, mathematicians and figures of New England. It is open to all competitors; no fee to join.

The development of the Sunday Globe is no less striking. It has, besides all the news, the unrivaled color page, a 12-page section of magazine worth literature and fiction. It devotes a whole page to the young folks who like good poetry, acrostics, puzzle stories, color cutouts and picture stories.

It has a comprehensive Housekeepers' Department, reinforcing that striking feature of the Daily. In it are printed columns of the best cooking and illustrated needlework, with this special attraction not found in the Daily, namely, the discussion by practical housekeepers of the expenses of keeping house, saving housework, bringing up of children and the care of babies.

The Sunday Globe also has a whole column of complete short stories by the best writers in the United States and British empire.

Every issue of the Boston Globe, daily and Sunday, contains numerous reproductions of the best fashion plates for women that can be had in Paris, New York and London, and up to date. But the Sunday Globe has also the striking fashion articles by expert writers and illustrators.

The "Beautiful and the Charming Woman" is a series of toilet talks just started in the Sunday Globe. It has proved a great boudoir hit, because it is replete with good recipes and sensible advice about the complexion and the feminine form.

The Sunday Globe has, moreover, recently added the new educational auxiliary of a careful reproduction each Sunday of some famous work of art, with an account of the picture and the artist. Order your newsdealer to deliver the Boston Daily and Sunday Globe regularly at your home.

WASHINGTON TOURS, $25. Descriptive itineraries of the series of tours, Boston to Washington, under the personally conducted tourist system of the Pennsylvania railroad, may be obtained of D. N. Bell, tourist agent, 205 Washington street, Boston.

The attention of those who intend giving their children a musical education is called to the advertisement of Miss E. L. Baker in another column. Miss Baker teaches the well-known Fletcher method, and new classes will start the week commencing Jan. 27.

H. B. Johnson, of Arlington, continues to repair all kinds of boilers and heaters in the best possible manner. Before going to Boston or elsewhere to buy a heater for your new house or your old one get an estimate from Mr. Johnson and be convinced that you can save money. Is not that a fair request? You will find it to your advantage.

"ALL RIGHT."
Arthur Winn, of Arlington, who is partially bereft of articulated speech, puts into his "all right" a world of meaning. In this brief greeting of his there is good fellowship and substantial cheer.

Arthur is not given to much speaking, but what he says he means. And so we have often thought that it would be well if men and women everywhere would say less and mean more. Arthur's "all right," which is so familiar to all Arlington, contains a whole sermon. Arthur in many respects is the teacher of us all.

JUMPING ACCOUNTS.
It used to happen more or less frequently, back in the country, that the good old farmers, after keeping their business transactions one with the other upon the barn door or side of the house, would come together at the end of the year and jump accounts.

This unsatisfactory way of doing business, although indicating a neighborly feeling, would hardly square with our modern method of bookkeeping. The only way to do a thing is to do it right. Especially is this true in all money transactions. Take a receipt for every dollar you pay out and then there can be no debate as to the payment of the bill. Not only take your receipt, but file it as well. Many great and serious annoyances between individuals would be averted if they would only keep their accounts straight.

To whom does the dollar belong? Is oftentimes a question involving the peace of a whole neighborhood. So we repeat, keep your accounts straight and take a receipt for all money paid out.

JUDGE PARMENTER.
Hon. William E. Parmenter, who retires at the age of nearly 86 years from the chief justiceship of the municipal court of Boston, comes back to private life crowned with many honors. Distinguished for his high sense of justice and his professional attainments, he is regarded among the first in the legal world. Judge Parmenter is respected and beloved by all. His connection with the public schools of Arlington for many years, a part of which time he was president of the school committee, proved him an educator ranking with the first. He was even in the early 30s in all educational work well up with our more modern methods of instruction. There is no teacher of those earlier times who does not remember Judge Parmenter with real affection. As a citizen of Arlington for more than forty years, he had been an important factor in every good word and work, having in view the welfare of his adopted town. A man of agreeable presence and easy of approach, it is always a delight to meet him. The whole town will unite in the wish that Judge Parmenter in his retirement shall have those golden days which come from duties well performed and from years that are fragrant with the pleasantest memories. It is happily befitting that so many a son as James P. Parmenter is to officially follow in the footsteps of so worthy a father.

A SNAP-SHOT JUDGMENT.
A snap-shot judgment is in a majority of instances the better judgment, after all. Our first impressions of men are largely correct.

Intuitively we come to know the individual at first sight. By some unknown law we either attract or repel. By no process of reasoning can we get at the "why" the Master, by this same unknown law, was attracted to John on first meeting him. As little as we know of this law of repulsion or attraction, its truth and vital power are everywhere seen and accepted.

The children upon the public highway instinctively recognize the friend passing them whom they have never seen before. They never pluck other than the good man's gown. We as naturally run from some people as we would run from a cyclone or a thunder-shower, while we are attracted to others as naturally as the opening bud is attracted to the sunshine, so that any social life based upon any material worth must fail, and for the reason that in such instance that great, unknown magnetic law is disregarded. There can be no real companionship where no affinity exists. That society life which shall prove itself in doing must base itself upon inherent qualities.

PROF. GRIGGS' LECTURE.
The lecture given before the Woman's club, Saturday evening, by Prof. Griggs, evinced an unusual ability and research. The subject of the lecture, "The Training of the American Citizen," involved the moral and intellectual education of the individual. All intellectual training, to do its work, must have as its basis moral instruction. He laid much stress upon the fact that the school and the family must stand responsible for the man.

Neither the individual nor the nation can live for himself or itself alone. We are all related each to the other so that every act of ours must reach out to some other and then react upon ourselves. That individual who works for self alone must necessarily make a failure of life. And not otherwise is it with the nation; if it strives to live as though unrelated to any other people, it must fail to reach that higher life which is only to be attained by doing for others. If it is selfish and grasping in the object to be secured, it will miserably fail. In discussing the national traits of the people, the speaker most delicately and yet severely gave an implied criticism on the war that the American people is waging against the Philippines. In treating of patriotism, Prof. Griggs said the term had been greatly misused and restricted in its application. Patriotism, the speaker said, has to do with peace as well as war. And so he claimed that literature should be taught in our schools as well as history, which deals for the most part with warriors and statesmen. There is no reason, said the speaker, why the names of Emerson and Longfellow and Hawthorne and Holmes should not be made as familiar to the American people as the names of Grant and Sherman and other warriors.

The entire lecture showed that the speaker believes unmodifiedly in the golden rule. With Prof. Griggs it is: Give, and then will ye receive more abundantly. He evidently believes in the supreme law of love, and his address was a delightful translation of that law, and was fully appreciated.

Pneumonia does not even pass editors by, but it is gratifying to know that Dr. Busbee, of Arlington Heights, editor of the Universalist Leader, is able to be at his desk in the city again.

Chief of Police Harriman, of Arlington, needs and deserves a vacation without the asking. Will he get it?

We know now what David meant when he wrote, "Preserve me as the apple of thine eye."

"Keep what you have got and catch what you can" will in the end bankrupt the shrewdest man.

POLICE REPORT.
A combination ambulance and patrol wagon and one additional police officer are included in the recommendations of Chief of Police A. S. Harriman, of Arlington, in his annual report, now in the hands of the selectmen.
The report shows that during the past year there were 151 arrests, buildings put up 530, accidents reported 32, judgments found open and secured 55, contagious disease cases reported 65, defective streets and sidewalks reported 26, defective wires reported 25, defective electric lights reported 1110. The sick and injured persons cared for numbered 36, amount of property stolen $1042.25, amount of stolen property recovered $387. There have been several successful prosecutions for the illegal sale of liquor. The amount of money expended on the department was $3537.79.

Chief Harriman recommends that an additional patrolman be appointed, so that at night an officer will be at the station every minute of the time from 6 p.m. until relieved by the chief in the morning. There are now, besides the chief, eight regular patrolmen, two day men and six night men. The chief is at the station days while the two men are on the street. Nights the other officers have the station in charge, one month in succession. The station officer, however, is obliged to cover the center beat, and sometimes telephone calls and other notifications come to the station while the desk officer is on the street. This condition of affairs is admitted to be poor economy and Chief Harriman strongly urges that another officer be added soon. The force is a credit to the town, and it is believed the recommendations of the popular chief in this instance will be favored by the townspeople.

TO ENFORCE BY-LAWS.
Instructions have been given Chief of Police Harriman to enforce rigidly the town by-laws in regard to the keeping of swine. Complaints to the local board of health were of no avail until when last May the citizens took a decided stand in the matter and called a special town meeting to consider the swine question.
By an overwhelming vote the town decided to make a radical change in the by-laws regarding the question. A by-law was passed to go into effect Jan. 1, 1902, which virtually aimed to abolish all large piggeries, and to limit the number of swine to be kept by any person, and those on his own premises only. The by-laws were approved early in November by Judge Fox, in the court of special pleas at East Cambridge. Just what the outcome of the whole affair will be remains for time to develop. Some of the owners of the piggeries do not believe the by-law constitutional, and it is possible a legal controversy will be the result.

NOTICE CONCERNING EVENING SCHOOLS.

Arlington, Mass., January, 1902.
By vote of the Town Meeting of March, 1901, the School Committee was directed to ascertain whether there was need of an evening school in Arlington. To this end the undersigned, a committee appointed for that purpose, have prepared suitable registration blanks, sufficiently comprehensive to indicate both the number of youth desiring such instruction, and the subjects to be taught there. These blanks have been placed in the police station, at the postoffice, Arlington Heights, and with the members of the School Committee. Those desiring to join evening classes are requested to fill out the blanks, and either leave them with the superintendent of police, or send them to the superintendent of schools.

BIRTHDAY REMEMBERED. ARLINGTON LOCALS.

Col. Alfred Norton of Arlington Given Reception by Inspectors of Customs in Boston—Was 87 Years Old Thursday.

The eighty-seventh birthday of Col. Alfred Norton, of Arlington, was the occasion for a reception to him at the office of inspectors of customs in Boston, Thursday afternoon. It was arranged by his associate inspectors of the customs department and all were there to offer congratulations. A handsome floral tribute was given the colonel, and he made a brief address expressing his sincere appreciation of the good-will and esteem of his brother officers.
Col. Norton was born in Newburyport, Jan. 23, 1815. He came to Boston at an early age and was educated in the public schools. He also attended the Boston Latin school, which at that time was on School street, on the present site of the Parker house. He attended Harvard college and was a classmate of the late ex-Mayor F. O. Prince and other men afterward of prominence. He left college and entered into the manufacture of paper with his brother, the firm having a Boston office on State street and mills at Lawrence, Bridgewater and other places.

At the age of 22 Col. Norton was deputy naval officer of the port of Boston. George Bancroft, the historian, was collector of the port at the time. After three years' service Mr. Norton entered mercantile life and re-entered the custom house service after a long and honorable record during the Civil war.

At the outbreak of the Civil war, Col. Norton was appointed commissary of subsistence in the army of the union. He was promoted to major at the battle of Fredericksburg.

At the close of the war he was ordered to New Hampshire to close up the business of the commissary quartermaster and ordnance departments in that state.

Col. Norton was one of the founders of the Mercantile Library association of the city. At the death of John Brown, the citizens of Winchester, Mass., invited Col. Norton to deliver an address on the day of the execution. The address was widely published.

Col. Norton was secretary of the Boston lyceum when Alexander Everett, brother of Edward Everett, was its president.

ARLINGTON BOAT CLUB.

On the alleys of the Arlington Boat club, Tuesday, the 99th A. A. won two out of three games. The feature was the making of five strikes in a bunch by H. L. Durgin. The score, 99th A. A., 49, 810, 819, 2475. Arlington, 796, 868, 866, 2470.

At the whist tournament at the club house, Saturday evening, George Rugg and Robert Rawson won first prizes, and E. S. Kimball and A. T. Marston won seconds. The first prizes were handsome stick pins.

There will be a pool tournament at the club house this evening.

It was ladies' night at the club house, last evening, and there was a large attendance. The Lotus Glee club of New York, consisting of a male quartet and a reader, Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith, furnished the entertainment. It was of a very high order and well appreciated. The committee in charge was Arthur J. Wellington, Ernest L. Rankin and Harold L. Willis.

The victory of the Boat club bowling team over Newton this week, was the best of the season. The Arlington bowlers worked together and made no bad plays. Two out of three games were thus secured. The score: Arlington Boat club, 859, 873, 930, 2662; Newton, 854, 890, 880, 2625.

The following have been elected to succeed the present editorial and business staff of the Arlington High school yearbook, who completed their year with the number issued just before the Christmas recess: Editor, Annie B. Tufts; exchange editor, Emma Turner; class editors, Arthur Trowbridge, Mabel Perry, Eliot Storey, M. Carlella; Welles manager, Frank Buhler; assistant manager, James Allen; treasurer, Horace Holt; secretary, Ruth Hornblower.

The "no school" signal was sounded for the grammar and primary grades Wednesday, on account of the heavy rain storm.

Arlington was well represented at the Boston Bank Officers association entertainment and promenade concert in Symphony hall, Tuesday evening. The Amphion club, assisted by Miss Lucie Tucker and the Salem Cadet band, were the excellent talent engaged, and a fine musical program was given. Several Arlington young men are members of the association.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Walcott (Maude Pierce) are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, last Sunday.

The Clover Lend-a-hand club was entertained by Miss Cairn Robbins, at her home on Massachusetts avenue, Tuesday afternoon. This was the regular monthly meeting.

Spy pond has been a busy place the past week. C. W. Lisley had a large gang of men at work cutting ice Saturday, Sunday and Monday, filling his house with a supply of clear ice about twelve inches in thickness. The Cambridge Ice Co. began cutting Monday, continuing on Tuesday. The rain on Wednesday delayed them, but since then rapid progress has been made and a full supply is assured. A large crowd of spectators watched the interesting work on Sunday.

Monday evening a large party went from Arlington to the Belmont Tennis club dance, in the town hall, Belmont, and last night another large delegation from this town attended the concert given by the Tufts College Glee, Banjo and Mandolin clubs, which was followed by dancing in the same place.

The exhibition of the World's Music, which is being going on at the Horticultural hall, Boston, the past two weeks, has attracted great attention and interest. Among the many instruments exhibited is one loaned by John T. Trowbridge, of Pleasant street, called the "Harmodion," an antique instrument of the order of "musical glasses."

The ladies of the Altar guild connected with the Universalist church will entertain their gentlemen friends at the home of Miss Abbie Russell, Medford street, Monday evening, from 8 to 10 o'clock.

The property at 20 Wellington street was sold Monday afternoon to Dr. Hodgdon, of Dedham.

The 24th Mass. Regiment held a reunion in Boston at the American house, Monday afternoon and evening. Alfred E. Knowles, of the firm of Knowles & Marden, was a member of the above regiment. Mr. Knowles was elected president of the association for the coming year.

Seven new members were initiated by Court Order of Arlington, P. of A., Monday evening. The degree work was exemplified by Chief Ranger Daniel M. Hooly, assisted by Deputy Grand Chief Ranger Kelley and suite. A collation was served, after which a pleasant social hour was passed. Brief addresses were made by the officers of the local court, also by invited guests. The report of the treasurer showed the court to be in a most flourishing condition, there being over $500 in the treasury, and all bills paid.

The Arlington Building Fund association held an enjoyable dinner and matinee whist in Grand Army hall, last week Friday afternoon. The new officers elected for the year are Mrs. Nellie M. Farmer, president; Mrs. George H. Rugg, vice-president; Mrs. Carrie H. Thayer, secretary; Mrs. Winfield S. Durgin, treasurer.

Prof. E. H. Griggs will lecture again before the Woman's club, Feb. 3, at Assinippi hall. The subject is "Education for the Art of Life."

Miss Mabel G. Yeames sang at the old-fashioned "quilting party" given by the Daughters of Vermont, at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, last week.

A number of Arlington skating enthusiasts were noticed on Jamaica pond, last Saturday afternoon, there being no skating on Spy pond.

Frank C. Elwell, of Pelham terrace, who has been on his back for nearly four and a half months, the result of a fractured thigh, received from a fall from his horse early in September, was able to have the splints, which have held the limb, replaced by a plaster cast, last Saturday. With assistance he can now move about the room, and hopes soon to venture out with the aid of crutches.

Miss Lillian Peck, of Pleasant street, has been confined to her home by sickness the past week.

Wendell Grey of Addison street, is singing in the boy choir of St. James's Episcopal church, Cambridge, of which organization Frank Grey has been a member for some months.

Miss Ruth Richardson, of Pleasant street, entertained her friend, Miss Helen MacLaren, at the Town Hall school, Wellesley, over last Sunday.

Mrs. Charles A. Hardy entertained some twenty-five of her friends at an informal whist party, at her pleasant home in "The Caldwell," last week Friday evening.

Last Sunday was generally observed by the Episcopal church throughout the country as Missionary day. A large congregation was present at St. John's, where the rector, Rev. James Yeames, preached a sermon appropriate to the day, and special music was rendered by the vested choir.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

A sermon to be given by Rev. Samuel C. Bushnell, in the near future, has the following text: "Thou shalt love the Lord Thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind and with all thy strength and with all thy body." Special emphasis will be given the latter clause of the text.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

Sunday, January 25, Septuagesima, in round numbers, the 70th before Easter. Of the three strangely named Sundays—Septuagesima, Sexagesima and Quinquagesima—the last only exactly marks the day—the 50th before Easter, as Pentecost (Whitsunday) is the 50th day after.

The Rev. James Yeames will preach in the morning and evening, services at St. John's church, on Sunday, 10.30 morning prayer and sermon; 7.30 evening prayer and sermon.

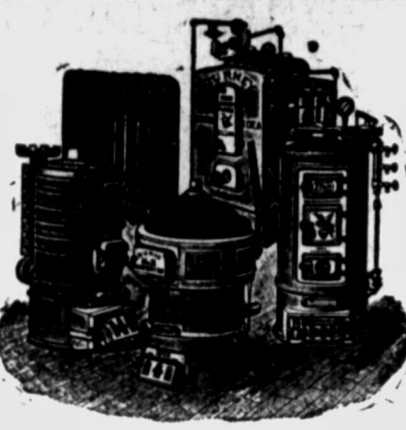

In spite of the fact that Christmas has come and gone, still Expressman J. H. Edwards goes to and comes from Boston with heavily laden wagons and for the sole reason that he handles all goods with care and delivers them promptly.

J. J. Loftus, the merchant tailor, is way up to "A" in his style of goods, and up to date in their make-up. Remember his number, 600 Massachusetts avenue.

The appearance of H. A. Perham's drug store has been greatly improved by the putting in of a central "gas arc" light, which lightens the store in all parts. Later Mr. Perham is to place similar lights in the windows of his store.

The compounding of prescription requires no little degree of skill, that is, to compound them as they should be. There is no question about the medicines which are compounded by Perham's prescription pharmacy, for they are carefully prepared. There are also drugs and high quality drugs. Perham uses the latter kind. He has always on hand a full line of choice confectionery. Fresh every week.

"I FORGOT."

But what business had you to forget? It is the bounden duty of each individual of us to remember. This forgetting indicates a want of interest in the object to be attained, or in the individual who should have been kept in mind. "I forgot you" is to "damn your friend with faint praise." It is even worse than this, for it is the entire ignoring of the friend. "I forgot" is only another translation of "I don't care." We have now in mind where a woman of high social rank entertained a select few in a sumptuous way. A lady of equal rank had been somewhat omitted on the list of invitations, and, feeling much aggrieved thereby, the hostess of the party made apology after this wise: "My dear lady, in the hurry and bustle of the work preparatory to the reception I gave, I, all unconsciously, forgot you." This was simply "adding insult to injury." To forget one is not only to kill him, but it is to bury him in more than six feet of earth. Forgetfulness is annihilation without any hope of a resurrection. To forget in the business world is the upsetting of every law of political economy. "I forgot" has made bankrupt many a man. A business engagement should be kept with the utmost exactness as to time and place. To forget is a cheat and a fraud. The truth is, men and women do not forget; they simply don't care. Why not be honest, and so say what we feel in our innermost soul? Why pretend to love him or her for whom we do not care a fig? Why say we forget such, when the fact is we do not care for them? No, no, we do not forget; we don't care.

Lexington people will have to worry along with a $50,000 high school building with wooden trimmings, after all. Evidently, while the beauties of metal ornaments are appreciated, they are not deemed essential to a good education.

A FASCINATING STUDY.

Tourists and all lovers of art have always expressed the greatest surprise at the cleverness of our American Indians as shown in their beautiful specimens of basketry. Very recently some of our club women have taken up the study of basketry, and have mastered it themselves, are instructing their children in the fascinating work. One of the best known studios where this work is taught is conducted by Florence M. Hutchins in Huntington chambers, Huntington avenue. Miss Hutchins also teaches sloyd work and makes all kinds of basket wares, music racks, small tables, etc., to order.

In another column E. H. Smith, of 322 Boylston street, announces his annual mark-down sale of men's, women's and children's boots and shoes. Do not miss this opportunity to secure some rare bargains.

A thriving business is that managed and owned by L. A. Austin, the grocer at East Lexington. The genial postmaster quickly makes friends and acquaintances and then keeps them for his customers by good honest dealing. There is nothing new and staple in the grocery line but what Mr. Austin finds it out as soon as anyone, and then he supplies his customers at a moderate price.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Doyle, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lynch are the proud parents of a baby boy born last week.

At the installation of officers of Ida F. Butler Rebekah lodge, in Arlington, recently, the retiring noble grand Mrs. L. A. Austin, was presented with a handsome past grand's regalia. It was a collar of pink and green, with gold fringe and ornaments, and was the gift of the lodge as a token of appreciation for the valued services of Mrs. Austin as the presiding officer. The special dignity made the presentation.

Victor Biagi, a resident of East Lexington for a few days, was before the district court in Concord, Thursday, charged with larceny from the person of Michael Boloney of $43. He was discharged. The arrest was made in Boston and Officers Foster and Irwin was given the custody of the prisoner. Both men are Russian Poles and for a time roomed together in East Lexington. Boloney claims the money was stolen from his pocket one night while asleep, but Biagi proved an alibi. Boloney slept with his clothes on and the money in a pocketbook was cut out with a knife. As the defendant was the only one believed to be in a position to know where the money was kept he was at once suspected.

There was a large gathering at the supper and entertainment given by the Ladies Aid of the Baptist society, Wednesday evening. Supper was served in Follen hall from 6 to 8. Charles Hadley entertained the company in Emerson hall, the first part of the evening, with selections on the graphophone, after which the following program was rendered: Reading, Edna S. M.; song, Harvest Moon, quartet, Edwin Torrey, John Wright, C. E. Hadley and T. B. Streeter; reading, Aunt Sophronia Taber at the Opera and Glimet versus Corkscrew, Miss Grace Cookson; good night drill, Lois Page, Katie Armstrong, Mattie Wilson, Edna Sim, Lena McDonald, Florence Page, Mildred Caldwell and Abbie Fletcher; reading, New Church Organ, Mrs. M. A. Page; graphophone. The children in the good night drill looked very sweet in their white night dresses, with their candies and dolls, and it added very much to the enjoyment of the evening. Among those present were Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Cox, Rev. F. A. W. MacDonald and Mrs. Fuller, of Lexington.

The Follen choir will give a stocking social and entertainment with refreshments in Emerson hall, Tuesday, Jan. 28, at 7.45 p.m.

Miss Grace Cookson, of Charlestown, spent a few days, this week, with her sister, Mrs. M. A. Page.

A runaway horse attached to a sleigh dashed through the Center Monday, but was stopped by the efforts of Frank Kearns, who took no little risk in so doing. The horse had been driven by Miss Beatrice Stevens until at the corner of Palmer street and Massachusetts avenue, in attempting to turn around, the sleigh was overturned by the frantic endeavor of the animal to make a quick turn. Miss Stevens was thrown out, but luckily escaped serious injury. The horse, which had become badly frightened, started on the run and continued his wild pace until stopped in the Center, in front of Toomey's hair dressing parlor.

Friday evening of last week was the date of a pleasant evening party given by Miss Anita K. Dale at her home on Chandler street, to her schoolmates the senior class. During the first part of the evening games were played, and later refreshments were served. The party broke up between ten and eleven o'clock, and all reported a delightful time. Those present were: The Misses Dora Ames, Beatrice Batchelder, Jessie Brown, Lesbia Butler, Helen Finch, Winifred Griffin, Mabel Jackson, Emma Macomber, George Peters and Ella Tewksbury; Masters Harry Gallagher, Hugh Greeley, James McCarty, Henry Tilton and Richard Wellington.

District Deputy Grand Master Workman William H. Whitaker and suite installed the officers of Livermore lodge A. O. U. W., in Lowell, Monday. A large delegation from Lowell lodge was present, and the ceremony was a most interesting one. Tuesday evening, the senior class of the Lexington high school gave a sleighing party which was one of the largest which has been given in the city. All the senior class, with the exception of two members, was present, several from the junior class and a large number of young ladies and gentlemen not connected with the Lexington school. The party was under the charge of Miss French and Miss Gowdey, two of the high school teachers. They left Lexington at 7.30, first going to Concord, and from there, through Waton and Lincoln to Wakefield. They arrived back in Lexington again at 11.30, and all reported a delightful time.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON IV, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JAN. 26.

Text of the Lesson, Acts iii, 1-16. Memory Verses, 6-8—Golden Text, Ex. xv, 2—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

1-3. It was the hour of the evening sacrifice, the hour when Jesus died on Golgotha (Matt. xxvii, 46, 50), that found Peter and John going into the temple on this occasion. While the unbelieving Jews continued their forms the believers in Jesus Christ met for prayer, knowing that the true and only sacrifice for sin was in heaven on their behalf and that they, His witnesses, could do nothing without Him.

4, 5. As Peter and John said, "Look on us," he looked, expecting to receive something in the way of money, for he knew not of the durable riches and righteousness of Prov. viii, 18. "He gave heed, expecting to receive," and that is more than many believers do when they pray, for they ask, and wonder if they are heard, and are surprised if they receive, and talk about its being so wonderful and so strange. How much better it would be when we pray to expect, according to Ps. v, 3; lxxi, 5; John xiv, 13, 14. This lame man was expecting from people, but Peter and John had learned to expect from God. If believers would say hold of or be laid hold of by these words: "Cease ye from man," "It is God who worketh" (Isa. ii, 22; Phil. ii, 13), great things might be seen.

6. "In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk." Silver and gold could not do this nor all the power of man, but those who have neither gold nor silver can be friends of and partners with Him who doeth all such things. There is something better than money which can be had without money (Isa. lv, 1; Rev. xii, 17). Many profess to have the gift of God, but some really possess Him. It would be well to consider, "Have I Christ, or do I only seem to have or think that I have?" (Luke xii, 18, margin; 1 John v, 12). Peter could say: "I have," "I give."

7, 8. "Walking and leaping and praising God." This by a man over forty years of age who had never walked! Well might the people call it a notable miracle (chapter iv, 16, 22). It was accomplished in a moment. As soon as Peter took him by the right hand immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength. It was written by the prophet that a lame man should leap as a hart (Isa. xxxv, 6). But how few would ever expect that such words would have such a literal fulfillment? And that is one of our great difficulties and hindrances. We seem so slow to believe that God means just what He says.

9, 10. The people saw Him and knew Him and were filled with wonder and amazement. So on the day of Pentecost they were all amazed and marveled (chapter ii, 7, 12). The change in this man was so manifest and unmistakable that it could not be denied (iv, 16), yet the authorities would, if they could, stop all such doings. A lady whom I know, whose eyes were miraculously healed after all the doctors had failed to help, put the story in tract form, and a doctor who read it told her she was doing wrong, as others might think they could have a similar experience. What are we on earth for if not that the works of God may be seen in us. (John ix, 3).

11. "The lame man which was healed held Peter and John." The healed man naturally clung to his deliverers, and the crowd ran to see the healed and the healers. There is so little power of God in the church today that the crowd has to be drawn by entertainments, suppers, concerts, etc.; but let some of the power that was seen on this occasion be again manifested, and the things which now disgrace the church might speedily vanish. This man's help came through Peter and John, and he clung to his visible deliverers. When we learn to say sincerely, "My help cometh from the Lord, who made heaven and earth," we will no longer look to the hills for help (Ps. cxi, 1, 2, margin, and Jer. lii, 23).

12. "Why look ye so earnestly on us?" Not knowing the invisible God, people gaze with wonder upon the visible instruments by whom God is graciously pleased to work, but if those whom God uses would continue to be used by Him they must be careful to give God the glory, for no flesh shall glory in His presence (1 Cor. i, 29-31). As soon as the instrument is willing to be magnified the power ceases. Concerning Pharaoh's dream, Joseph said that it was not in him to interpret it, but that God would do it, and Daniel said that there was no wisdom in him more than in others, but that the God in heaven, who revealeth secrets, would make known the dream (Gen. xli, 16; Dan. ii, 28-30).

13-16. "His name, through faith in His name, hath made this man strong." As on the day of Pentecost, he told them that Jesus, whom they had crucified, had by God been raised from the dead and received up into heaven, so now he again tells them that the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob had glorified His Son Jesus, having raised Him from the dead, and that the perfect soundness of this man who had been lame was due wholly to the risen Christ, whose witnesses they were. We do not know that the man had any faith in Christ, but Peter and John had, and as the faith of the woman of Tyre and Sidon brought health to her daughter and the faith of the centurion brought health to his servant (Matt. viii, 10, 13; xv, 28), so their faith brought health to this man. Who can tell the possibilities of faith in God, and what do we know of the faith of the Son of God? (Mark xi, 22-24; Gal. ii, 20). As Memphis-oth was lame through no fault of his own, yet was made to live with the king and eat continually at the king's table (II Sam. iv, 4; ix, 13), so we who are all lame through Adam's sin, without strength, ungodly, may be healed by Him who, having died for us, is now alive forevermore (Rom. v, 1-16; iii, 24). Peter, in the power of the Spirit, preaches unto them Jesus and the resurrection, as taught by the prophets, and, telling them that Jesus Christ shall come again to restore all things of which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets, he urges them to repent, that their sins may be blotted out and that the times of refreshing may come with the coming again of the Lord Jesus (verses 17-21 and see R. V.). To the Jew first (verse 26) and to every creature (Mark xvi, 15) we are to give the gospel, that out of all nations the people for His name may be gathered (Acts xv, 14), and thus His Eve builded, that He may take her to Himself and come again in His glory.

FAVORITE BOAS, CLOTH COATS AND FURS OF THE DAY.

Lace Adds Its Elegant and Becoming Touch to Fur—Close Fitting Jackets Seem to Be Coming in Again. Black Net Gowns For Evening.

A feature in the fashions of the moment is the amalgamation of fur and lace. Many of the coats that are not pelerines are brought down below the waist with any open jacket that may be worn, the lace coming from under these ends, while it turns over as a sort of revers at the neck and gives a touch of exceeding smartness. Ermine is thus blended with lace, for the demand for ermine increases. Like light feather boas, its whiteness is becoming to the skin, certainly of youth, and those who have lost "la premiere jeunesse" are content to soften the effect with a little black chiffon. It is astonishing, as years go on, how friendly is that touch of black chiffon! Many young women have a rounded collar and lapel like that of a man's coat, made of ermine, which they slip on as they require it, and this is invariably mingled with a long scarf of lace or a dainty jabot, and the addition gives just the touch of smartness which is desired in the present style of dress. Lace and fur accord well with the large picturesque hats which are almost invariably trimmed now with this same mixture of fur softened by lace.

Full length and three-quarter coats remain the striking wraps of the present. The first cut shows a handsome three-quarter length coat in black glaze and jet and a full length cloth coat with black bear collar and tails. Fur garments seem to be growing more and more lovely and elaborate. In the second cut the Russian bolero of miniver, with belt and cuffs of embroidered velvet, shows the warm and cozy effect of one style, while the three-quarter coat of finest caracul, with high roll collar and a border of the same, is a strikingly luxurious conception.

Russian blouses made in cloth or velvet, the length bulging over the waistband and trimmed with large collars either of sable or chinchilla, with open bell sleeves, are some of the most fashionable outdoor garments. We are also returning to the close fitting jacket.

A good deal of inch wide black velvet ribbon is introduced on evening dresses, lines and cross lines intermingling with chenille stitchery. Black gowns of some thin material covered with embroidery, in which many elements mingle, cut square and having elbow sleeves, are extremely fashionable. In fact, no woman in society can afford to be without one at least.

Removing Ink Stains With Milk.

Although most people know that milk is the proper thing to remove an ink stain, many are not aware that the following is said to be the best way to go to work: The milk, having been boiled, should be allowed to cool until it is lukewarm, and the stained material should be dipped as soon as possible in this warm milk and rubbed lightly with the finger. The cleaning medium should be renewed as often as it becomes black. The ink stain will then be seen to fade away gradually, and the material will be rinsed and dried quickly and ironed.

INSTRUCTIONS.

Before giving an alarm be sure a fire exists. Give the alarm at the nearest box. Pull the hook way down, only once, and let go.

Never give an alarm for a fire seen at a distance. Wait at the box, if possible, and direct the firemen to the fire.

Never give a second alarm for the same fire; all second alarms are given by the engineers or other persons in authority.

Never give an alarm for a brush fire unless buildings are in danger; in such cases the firemen will take action to extinguish it.

Citizens are requested to inform themselves as to the location of keys. Signs over the boxes will give the necessary information.

CAUTION TO PERSONS HAVING KEYS.

Never open boxes except to give an alarm. You cannot remove your key until an engineer releases it, and it will then be returned to you.

Never allow the key out of your possession except to some responsible party, for the purpose of giving an alarm, and then see that it is returned.

If you remove a key from place of residence or business, return the key to the chief engineer.

A CASE OF RHEUMATISM

By Carrie M. Taylor.

Copyright, 1901, by A. S. Richardson.

Things had happened in the town of Rossville—dogfights, runaways, Fourth of July, elections and clothesline robberies—but nothing had ever happened to equal the failure of Thomas Mason, merchant. He went to the wall after doing business for twenty years, owing his New York creditors $2,000.

His failure was known at 8 o'clock one morning, and by 9 it was generally understood that his wife's extravagance had precipitated the crisis. An hour later everybody could remember just how many new hats, dresses and cloaks she had had during the last year, to say nothing of hosiery, gloves and shoes. At 11 o'clock Mr. Mason hung himself in his woodshed, and at high noon the body was discovered and public gossip had it that the widow had been left without a dollar and would have to take in washing. Had a vote been taken the ballot would have stood: Sorry for her, 600; glad not, 3,000.

Mrs. Mason had always been high headed and exclusive, and so her "come down" was exulted over—not for long, however. The funeral had scarcely been held when it became known that the husband had left her $20,000 life insurance. Public opinion changed at once. She received so many calls of sympathy that the front gate dropped from its hinges, and had any one dared to hint that she was high headed or extravagant there would have been a row.

After a year of mourning half a dozen different men were ready to give the widow a new name and to handle

her cash. She had taken no vow against a second marriage, and she looked more lovable than ever. The list of her admirers included a widower, a bachelor, a divorced lawyer and three young men, and their feet kept her front steps warm. It looked as if she would have to select one of the six to protect her from the other five, but she was in no hurry.

One by one they dropped out until only the lawyer and the bachelor were left. People said it was about an even thing between them, and the lawyer, whose name was Braxton, must have argued the same way. He wouldn't have been a lawyer if he had been satisfied with an even thing. When two men love the same woman, she is kept plentifully supplied with bouquets, books, music and all else that a lover may send, and never a day passes that at least one does not long to die for her. Neither man can score an advantage, and the case is finally decided on its merits. The bachelor, Mr. Dayton, argued it out that this one would be, but the lawyer didn't. He began to study the widow's character with a view to making a grand coup. She was not ambitious; she was not vain; she couldn't be taken in by flattery; she had just one weak point, as the lawyer loved decided—she was romantic and inclined to hero worship and he would build up his case on that.

It isn't an easy thing to be a hero to order. When Mr. Braxton had decided to take that line, the trouble was to find an occasion. There were no mad dogs running about the streets of Rossville, no raging conflagrations, nobody tumbling into the river to be pulled out, no anything. He walked around for a week or two looking for a hero opening, but as none came he sat down to do some hard judicial thinking. History does not state whether he got through at midnight or was still working when the sun of next morning shone on his face, but he had got his plan just the same.

That forenoon at 10 o'clock he passed the Mason house on his way to the office. The widow, who was working among her pinks and hollyhocks, gave him cordial salutation. He stopped to assure her of his undying affection and, clutching the fence, cried out in pain and finally fell to the ground. The widow cried out in alarm, and when men came on the run the stricken lawyer was borne into her house and put to bed.

It was supposed until the doctor came that it was a case of heart trouble, but he found no symptoms. Then the patient feebly explained that it was inflammatory rheumatism and that he had felt it coming on for days. If the doctor had never heard of rheumatism knocking a man down with a crowbar on the street, he wasn't ass enough to say so. The lawyer was able to pay a doctor's bill, and the doctor was there to make one. If there was anything queer and mysterious about the case, he had only to keep quiet and charge it in the bill. Thus the news went forth that Lawyer Braxton had a bad attack of inflammatory rheumatism and that as he couldn't be moved for weeks Mrs. Mason would be his nurse. A few people spoke of the trouble it would give her, but most of them said it was a romantic incident that must lead to a happy marriage.

Our Annual Shoe Sale. Ladies', Misses' and Children's Shoes marked below cost.

The fourth of our great sales is here announced—Shoes. During these weeks the public has had a pretty good opportunity of determining what a Corcoran Mark Down Sale is, and judging from the large number of buyers that attended these sales it is evident that the public knows the genuine thing. We have no time or use for, nor patience with advertisements that do not tell the straightforward truth and nothing else. We have nothing to do with misstatements. We have no sympathy with these falsified advertisements so common today. We tell you things as they are. So about the shoe sale. Every mark-down is correctly and properly stated; and we say that the price is cut from $2.50 to $1.37 we mean exactly what we say. Examine these FACTS, then inspect the goods and buy or not as you see fit.

VETERANS DANCE.

Arlington Firemen in Bright Red Uniforms Hold Forth Wednesday Evening—The Affair Was the Greatest Success Yet Scored.

The Arlington Firemen gave their third annual ball at the town hall, Wednesday evening. Not only was the attendance larger than ever before, but the affair was a greater social success as well.
From the first to the last dance the floor space of the hall was at a premium, and every couple found but little extra room to perform the varied dances in. Nevertheless, they were happy, and the occasion is one long to be remembered. Everything was in keeping with the event, from the hall decorations and veterans' red uniforms to the red souvenir dance order.

The grand march was a brilliant feature, the uniforms of the firemen and the many military men present making a pleasing contrast to the handsome costumes worn by the women.
The march was led by Capt. Timothy J. Donahue, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Mae Donahue. About 100 couples participated. Dancing followed until a late hour.
Capt. Timothy J. Donahue was floor marshal and Albert A. Tilden floor director. Assistant directors were William P. Schwamb, Melville A. Haskell and William J. Sweeney. The aids were: John Duffy, Andrew Irwin, Sylvester Mead, William H. Irwin, Arthur White, George Mead, Frank Grady, T. A. Smith, William T. Canniff, P. Frank Tobin, Jacob Snelder, J. P. Cashman, James Mead, John H. Gibbons, George Higgins, N. Foran and Henry A. Marlon.

THE FIREMEN'S PRIDE.

The committee of arrangements comprised: T. J. Donahue, chairman, Walter H. Peirce, Edward W. Schwamb, William J. Sweeney, Sylvester Mead, T. A. Smith, Walter W. Conant, William T. Canniff, Arthur T. White, P. F. Tobin, David Clancy, Jacob Schumacher, Reuben W. LeBaron, Melville Haskell and Joseph Cahalin.
On the reception committee were Chief Charles Gott, George Hill, Warren W. Rawson, Wm. P. Schwamb, Matthew Rowe, Walter H. Peirce, Thomas Hogan R. W. LeBaron, Frank P. Winn, A. Tilden, Edward J. Crowe, George W. W. Sears, Melville Haskell, Jacob Schumacher, Timothy J. Donahue, Warren A. Peirce, Patrick J. Ahern, Theodore Schwamb and William E. Wellington.
The banquet was served at Menotomy hall by Caterer Hardy, and the crowd being so much larger than was anticipated, it became necessary after a time to stop the sale of supper tickets.
The supper arrangements were in charge of Joseph Cahalin and Jacob Schumacher.
Among the invited guests on the stage were E. S. Farmer, chairman of the board of selectmen, Pres. Dunbar, of the Everett V. F. A., Capt. Cherrington, of the Boston veterans, Editor Gould, Mr. Hillings, of the Roxbury veteran firemen, Pres. McArthur, of the Red Jackets of Cambridge, Driver Clarkson, of the Somerville department, Henry Peirce, of the Red Jackets of Cambridge, N. L. Andrews, of Woburn, Capt. Newcomb, of Woburn, Selectman Walter Crosby, Chief Engineer Charles Gott and Assistant Engineer George W. W. Sears and ex-Engineer Warren A. Peirce.

These are the officers of the association. President, Timothy J. Donahue; vice-presidents, George W. White, Charles Gott, treasurer, Walter H. Peirce, recording secretary, Edward W. Schwamb, financial secretary, Jacob Schumacher, directors, R. W. LeBaron, Thos. Hogan, Wm. J. Sweeney, Warren A. Peirce, John Connolly.

TOWN MEETING BREEZES.

With the Arlington town meeting and election of officers for the ensuing year but about five weeks away, there is a little stir in political circles, although as yet candidates are backward in announcing themselves for the several positions. It is quite likely a large percentage of the officials whose terms expire will be candidates for re-election, and at all events the declinations, if there are to be any, have not yet appeared. Interest appears to center in the positions of selectman, town clerk, and treasurer and collector, the latter offices being tied together by a town by-law. The term of George L. Doe expires on the board of selectmen, and Mr. Doe has given no indication whether he will or will not stand for another three years. It is believed to be a good guess that Mr. Doe will accept if nominated, but it is purely a guess so far as the public is concerned. Mr. Doe was asked Wednesday if he cared to make a statement as to his position at that time, but he said he was not yet ready to do so.

Harvey S. Sears who is now filling the positions of town clerk, treasurer and collector, is believed to be willing to accept nominations for the several offices, and although there are under ground rumors that other candidates will come forward, it is thought not unlikely that Mr. Sears will capture a portion of the nominations at least.
The other vacancies to be filled at the coming election and the officials now holding these positions are: Assessor, Lucian C. Tyler; school committee, Hattie F. Hornblower, John H. Perry, Ida F. Robbins and Harry B. Porter; sewer commissioner, Peter Schwamb; board of health, Edwin Mills; commissioner of sinking fund, William G. Peck; trustee of Prouty fund, William E. Wood; town library, Samuel C. Bushnell; Matthew Rowe and a vacancy caused by removal from town of Walter B. Farmer; trustee Robbins fund, soldiers' monument fund and cemeteries, S. Frederick Hicks; auditors, Alfred T. Marston and James R. Mann; tree warden, Warren A. Peirce; constables, John Duffy, Alonzo S. Harriman, George Barry and Daniel M. Hooley; fence viewers, John H. Hartwell and Matthew Rowe.

NIPPED IN THE BUD.

Thursday morning Chief of Police A. S. Harriman, of Arlington, had a third district court in regard to reports coming to the chief that a house at 59 Winter street had been rented to a club that had been driven out of Lynn for gambling. The chief and Officer Hooley visited the house after the conference with Judge Almy. Ringing the bell an old man, about 60 years of age, opened the door and asked to know what was wanted. The chief explained to him who he was and that he wanted to look the house over. The chief was asked to come in, and he and Officer Hooley gave the house a thorough search, but could find no evidence of gambling. The only furniture in the house was about twenty camp stools, kitchen stove and a few dishes. After making the search the chief had a little talk with the man and told him that the result would be if it was used for illegal purposes, and the man replied that there would be no further trouble as they did not like the place and were going to get out anyway.

Dr. Fred W. Derby, the refracting optician, is already, young as he is, authoritatively on the eye, and what is more, he is taking a full course in medicine, that he may thoroughly understand all about his specialty.

Arlington Heights.

The coasting was fine the first of this week and large parties were out Monday evening. Herbert Snow entertained a large party with his double runner, and Miss Ella Bridgman entertained Miss Bessie Wheeler, of Dorchester, and others in the same way. Tuesday night a number of Arlington people came up, but did not coast on account of the rain.

The Sunshine club met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. H. H. Kendall, of Claremont avenue.

The first assembly of the series of three, to be given this winter by Miss Grace Dwyelle, Oscar A. Schmetzer and Fred A. White, was held last night at Crescent hall. It was a 12 o'clock party, and numbers from out of town were present, many Harvard men being in evidence, so that it was a good sized party. Caterer Hardy served refreshments in the tete-a-tete room, which was fitted up with rugs and portieres in oriental effect. Poole's orchestra of four pieces furnished fine music for the dancers. Mrs. Minot Lawrence, of Arlington, and Mrs. Harry Alderman, of Lexington, received in becoming décollete gowns, the former in gray satin, handsomely trimmed, the latter in gray silk trimmed with black lace. Oscar A. Schmetzer, Harold E. Ring, Fred R. White and George W. Hill ushered.

Miss Mattie A. Prouty, of Cohasset, was entertained Friday night by Miss Grace R. Dwyelle.

A comedy-drama, "The Real Widow Brown," is to be given at Crescent hall, Monday night, by the Arlington Heights Dramatic club. It will be a great success, judging from the number of tickets already sold.

Miss Mabelle Perry gave a chafing dish party after the dance last night to a few of her friends, at her home on Florence avenue.

Miss Eva Brown and Miss Clara Richards, of Watertown, and Miss Katharine Leavick, of Boston, were entertained Friday night by Miss Ethel Tewksbury.

Mr. Church, of Hillsdale avenue, who has been ill, is now holding his own and expects to be convalescent soon. Pneumonia, even in a mild form, is no light affliction.

Donald Church, who has been on the sick list, is about the house again.

H. T. Elder is improving, but will be confined to the house, as he has a cold, and is now holding his own and expects to be convalescent soon. Pneumonia, even in a mild form, is no light affliction.

The young people, even of a larger crowd, have been on the flood-tide of good time, until the last rain storm. It is as difficult to catch winter in its fullness as to catch the tide at its flood.

Rumor has it that several new houses are to be built this spring.

Emory S. Streeter, of Worcester, made a visit with his relatives on Claremont avenue, Saturday.

Miss Helen McDonald's Bible class of Sunday school, at the Arlington Heights church, Tuesday afternoon, to consider the lesson for next Sunday.

Miss Margaret McDonald, formerly of the Heights, but now of Braintree, attended the Arlington Heights church, last Sunday.

Miss Helen Dolloff, of Cambridge, spent a portion of Sunday at the Heights.

Little Gladys Manley, of Hillsdale avenue, is quite ill.

J. Roscoe Wright, of 111 Claremont avenue, is much better, being able to be out of the house after several weeks of confinement to his room.

A party of young people from the Arlington Heights Baptist society went to Concord, Monday evening, sleigh-riding. The evening was magnificent and they report a fine time.

The Young Men's league met with Rev. A. W. Lorimer at his home on Forest street, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. T. A. Trefethen, of Lowell street, is quite improved since her long and tedious illness, and was able to be out to church, Sunday.

The Universalist society is making elaborate preparations for the annual fair, which will be held this year in the vestry of the church, the last of February.

Sunday is known in the Protestant churches as Young People's day, and the Universalist church will properly observe the occasion. In the morning the pastor will preach on some theme vital to the life of young people, and in the evening the Y. P. C. U. will hold a special service.

PARK AVENUE CHURCH.
The Park Avenue church had an exceedingly interesting day, Sunday, the morning and evening, being "The Beginning of the Christian Life." Tuesday the church was represented in a council at Pilgrim church, Cambridge, for the installation of its new pastor.

Sunday afternoon, the Sunday school completed itself for the new year by the re-election of its present officers and the reappointment of the present teachers. The list of officers includes: Minot A. Bridgman, superintendent; Edward W. Nicol, assistant superintendent; Charles H. Sloan, secretary; Miss Alice White, treasurer; Ernest Nourse, librarian; Harry Trask, assistant librarian; Miss Delia Bartlett and Miss Doris Parsons, pianists.

Some of the former parishioners of Rev. Alex. McKenzie, D. D., of the First Church in Cambridge, expect to attend Friday evening the 35th anniversary of his settlement over that church. President Eliot, of Harvard college, and others are to make addresses.

BAPTIST CHURCH.
The Arlington Heights Baptist church held its monthly business meeting Wednesday evening. Quite a large number were present.

The Y. P. C. U. will hold its weekly meeting tomorrow at 6 p. m. in the Arlington Heights Baptist church; subject, "Missionary Awakening." Romans 13: 10-14; leader, Miss Florence Streeter.

METHODIST CHURCH.
January 19 was Missionary Sunday at the Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. W. G. Smith, preached a missionary sermon in the morning; in the evening, Mr. Forsaker Takeda, of Japan, addressed the congregation. He also spoke to the Junior League in the afternoon.

Presiding Elder J. H. Mansfield held the fourth quarterly conference, last Wednesday evening. Encouraging reports were given from the various departments of the church. The trustees elected for the next conference year are Messrs. F. J. Harling, J. E. Wood, George A. Disston, H. S. Bacon, J. M. McMillan, J. A. Southall, H. T. Howson, and J. I. Smith; the stewards elected are Messrs. F. Miles, F. J. Harling, W. R. Stiles, J. V. Goddard, J. F. Winchenbach and J. E. Woodard. After the close of the conference, Rev. W. G. Smith was unanimously requested to return for the next conference year. The presiding elder spoke very flatteringly regarding the work of the church during the past year and complimented the official board upon the good work accomplished. The outlook for the future of the church is most promising.

EVENING SCHOOL.
Arlington people will soon have an opportunity to receive instruction in evening schools, providing a sufficient number come forward and signify their disposition to enter into the plan. The sub-committee of the school board has had the matter in charge since the annual meeting of last year, and has made all plans necessary to institute a quarter school, which have been provided and placed at the police station, at the Arlington Heights postoffice, and with the several members of the school committee, so that any one desiring to join the school may secure a blank from any of these sources. When filled out, the blanks are to be sent to either the chief of police or the superintendent of schools. This opportunity is one highly to be prized, and applicants should not wait before taking advantage of it.

The funeral of Thomas Williams, of Arlington, was held at his late residence on Belknap street, at 3 o'clock, Sunday afternoon. Rev. George H. Bushnell, assisted Rev. S. C. Bushnell, Miss Grace Lockhart sang a beautiful solo, "O Rest in the Lord, Wait patiently for Him and He will give thee thy heart's desire." A quartet, consisting of Messrs. Frank Fisher and Warren Taylor and Miss Lockhart and Miss Mabel Bennett, sang "Nearer My God to Thee" and "The Sands of Time Are Sinking." Mr. Flint spoke from an intimate acquaintance with Mr. Williams, concerning his fidelity to duty, loyalty to Christ and his exceptional excellence in the home. His watch stopped exactly at 12 o'clock, which fact was suggestive of the meridian of life which also to be prized, and applicants should not wait before taking advantage of it.

ARLINGTON LOCALS.

One of the pleasantest affairs ever held in connection with St. John's church took place Thursday evening in the parish house, under the auspices of the Woman's guild. About one hundred were present and the opportunity was given for the older members to meet and get acquainted with the many newcomers into the parish. The pastor, Rev. James Yeames, made a few remarks on the importance of the social side of the church life. Some excellent musical numbers were given during the evening. Edward B. Sullivan's rich baritone voice was heard to great advantage in several solos, being accompanied by Miss Mabel Babson, and Mrs. Frank Anderson sang several songs in a most pleasing manner. Each number was encored. Refreshments were served by the members of the guild, assisted by several of the young ladies. Among those present was Rev. W. S. W. Raymond, now of South Boston, but formerly rector of St. John's, Arlington.

UNITARIAN CHURCH.
At both services at the First Parish (Unitarian) church tomorrow, the minister, Rev. Frederic Gill, will preach. The evening services, held in this church on the last Sunday of each month, are largely musical in character, and are more especially planned for the convenience of those who find it difficult to attend a morning service, or who particularly enjoy an evening service. This service will be even more than usual a musical one, the selections being made entirely from Farmer's Mass in B flat. The hour is 7. To each of the services the public is cordially invited.
